

High School

Return to School Process

During Therapy

Admission

- Tell your team that you are a student and plan to return to school.
- Your case manager will ask you to sign a consent form to allow your Speech Therapist talk to your school.
- Your Speech Therapist will call your school counselor.
- Your academic records will be requested to help guide treatment.

- Your therapy team will evaluate you and help you prepare to go back to school.
- Your therapy team will work with you to help you figure out when the best time will be for you to return to school.
- If the time is right, you may be asked to complete neuropsychological testing.
- If the time is right, your team may create a Return to School Report, which will be faxed to your school. This report tells about your learning strengths, weaknesses, and your team's recommendations, such as academic accommodations and/or further therapy.

Discharge

- In most cases, students don't return to school until their therapy is completed
- If you receive additional therapy after discharging from our facility, ask your new therapists to help support you in getting back to school.
- Once you leave therapy, you and your family will be prepared to speak with the school about your learning needs and should talk to school staff if you feel they are not being met.
